Assemblin Caverion Group supports John Nurminen Foundation in their work to save the Baltic Sea

Assemblin Caverion Group continues supporting John Nurminen Foundation with their mission to save the Baltic Sea and its heritage for future generations.

Assemblin Caverion Group is one of the key partners of John Nurminen Foundation. Corporate partnerships and donations are very important for the Foundation and their work.

"With our donation and the work we do together with our customers every day for more resource-efficient built environment, we want to play our role and show support for the work to save the Baltic Sea," says Mats Johansson, the President and CEO of Assemblin Caverion Group.

"Company donations help us to combat the biggest problems in the Baltic Sea. The eutrophication, caused by excessive nutrient load by human activities, is also causing the biodiversity loss in the Baltic Sea. Many of our projects aim to reduce the eutrophication. At the same time, however, it is important to enhance people's relationship with the sea, as those who have a close relationship, are more likely to do responsible actions to save the sea," says Annamari Arrakoski-Engardt, the CEO of John Nurminen Foundation.

"The Baltic Sea is our geographical heart but unfortunately, it is also one of the most polluted seas in the world. We are playing a part in improving the sustainability of the built environment directly related to the Baltic Sea through our services for hydropower and marine environments for example," concludes Jacob Götzsche, the Executive Chairman of Assemblin Caverion Group.

Assemblin Caverion Group delivers sustainable installations, technical services and solutions along the lifecycle of the built environment to support our customers achieve their goals.

Caverion, now part of Assemblin Caverion Group, has been supporting John Nurminen Foundation since 2021. You can read what the Foundation has achieved with their corporate donations in an article written by Caverion in cooperation with John Nurminen Foundation.

John Nurminen Foundation – Saving the Baltic Sea

Founded in 1992, the purpose of the John Nurminen Foundation is to save the Baltic Sea and its heritage for future generations. The Foundation's projects improve the status of the Baltic Sea by reducing the nutrient load and environmental problems, such as eutrophication and nature loss, faced by the sea. The Foundation's tasks also include safeguarding, celebrating and communicating the stories and cultural heritage of the Sea. The work is steered by measurable results and impact. The Foundation's operations are mainly funded by donations and grants. www.johnnurmisensaatio.fi/en
